Supervisory Special Agent Bryan Oakley

Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI)

Bryan Oakley Has been a Special Agent in the FBI for 19 years. Mr. Oakley is currently assigned as a lead instructor to the Critical Incident Response Group, National Counter-UAS Training Center (NCUTC) . Mr. Oakley primarily works on unmanned systems vulnerabilities and Counter Unmanned Aerial Systems (C-sUAS). Mr. Oakley has served at FBI Headquarters Cyber Division as a Supervisory Special Agent (SSA) and at multiple U.S. Embassies as an Assistant Legal Attache. Prior to assuming his post with NCUTC Mr. Oakley was with the Weapons of Mass Destruction Directorate, Emerging Threats and Technologies Unit (ETTU) focused on vulnerabilities to unmanned systems. Mr. Oakley is a FAA Part 107 pilot, Firearms Instructor, Tactical Emergency Vehicle Operations Instructor and Firearms Instructor. Prior to becoming a Supervisor, Mr. Oakley was a Cyber investigator and SWAT Operator with the Birmingham Division for over 10 years.

Prior to joining the FBI, Mr. Oakley served in the United States Marine Corps, worked as an RF engineer for a major telecommunications company and as a Computer Evidence Recovery Specialist with the Illinois Attorney General's Office for the Illinois Crimes Against Children Task Force.

Mr. Oakley has a Bachelor of Science in Information Technology and has multiple IT certifications including Network Intrusion Mitigation, Ethical Hacking and Digital Forensics.